A great place to start your research! You can quickly discover relevant information on any topic from across the library’s collections.

SEARCH

Searching is like searching the open Web, so start with a few keywords. If you are searching for a known item, you might want to try the Advanced Search option.

NAVIGATE RESULTS

Once you have a set of results, there are many options to help you explore topics, narrow your results set, and refine your search query. Recommendations and suggestions for other resources or search terms are also provided.

- Enter search terms in the single search box, or select the down-arrow to the right of the search button to use the Advanced Search form to create a more specific query using fielded search options and Boolean operators.

- Refine using facets and filters to narrow or expand results. Options include content type, date, discipline, library location, and more. Facets may change and get more granular as you navigate your search results.

- The Summon search box on the library home page automatically excludes newspaper articles and book reviews.

- Based on your search query terms, the Topic Explorer pane may appear on the right providing relevant topical reference content, links to related topics, and a Summon feedback form.

VIEW RESULTS AND ACCESS CONTENT

After you’ve identified an item of interest, you can access or locate the content, or use other features to further aid you in your research.

---

Save items to your folder for citation export, emailing and printing during your session. Or using the buttons in the right pane, cite or email a single item.

Image and label indicate type of content and the availability of the item online at your library.

View additional information about the item in the right pane by hovering over the title. You can conduct new searches by clicking on the subject, author, or other terms.
